The members of this high-flying quartet met during their studies at the Royal Birmingham Conservatoire. Our loyal regular audience will recognise three of the players from previous ensembles and since their re-incarnation as the Fletcher Quartet in 2017 they have quickly gained recognition as a group to watch out for.

They have been invited to attend the Stellenbosch International Chamber Music festival as the "visiting ensemble" early next summer. During this coming season they will be performing widely in the UK and South Africa. Recent highlights have included their TV appearance on "BBC Breakfast" (watched by over 6 million people!).

The quartet is mentored closely by members of the Lindsay String Quartet & the Kuss Quartet as well as on-going guidance from the Castalian Quartet, Heath Quartet & Jian Wang.
